

Lance Armstrong Says It's 'Time for the Riders to Seize Power'

Lance Armstrong issued an inspirational Instagram message on April 6 in which, among other things, he exhorted pro cycling riders to exploit this transformational period to seize more power in the sport. "To all you cyclists sitting at home, not sure about your paycheck – now is the opportunity to reset the scales, to get a seat at the table, to take the power back. You are the actors in this play, and remember – without the actors, there is no play." Is this finally the time that athletes could get a real chair at the table of pro cycling? What needs to happen for that to occur? Is it possible?

~~~~~

This was originally published on Velonews, continue reading it here. If you want to read more of our pieces, check out our full Velonews article library.

By Steve Maxwell, May 27th, 2020.